

THE CONCEPT

The Cherry Creek Innovation Campus will be a stand-alone college and career-preparedness facility accessible for high school students in the Cherry Creek Schools. With curriculum rooted in real-world skills and trade certifications ranging from the computer sciences to aviation to health and wellness, this facility will offer students a new kind of bridge to college and viable, successful careers.

Under the Career and Technical Education (CTE) umbrella, the CCIC will expand the district's commitment to preparing students for the academic and professional demands of the 21st century. The student learning experience will mimic state-of-the-art work environments, with a focus on putting learners in an industry-based culture and climate.

High schools will continue to host a wide range of CTE programs. This new facility will enhance current programming, and will also be home to more advanced and sophisticated educational opportunities for students.

*To inspire every student to think, to learn,
to achieve, to care.*

THE CAMPUS

The CCIC, located in the heart of Dove Valley, is a 117,000 square-foot, state-of-the-art facility. Students and business partners will discover easy access to the campus, constructed on a 40-acre lot near Centennial Airport and the Denver Tech Center.

Participating students will continue to earn diplomas from their home high schools. Students will attend the CCIC every other day during a morning or afternoon session, with transportation provided to and from each high school.

Whether students' post-high school plans include college, military, or entering the workforce right away, the CCIC will provide opportunities to gain valuable college credit and/or industry-recognized certifications. We are committed to excellence and providing a competitive advantage for all Cherry Creek graduates. It's always a great day in the Cherry Creek School District!
